Motel move planned for November

Diamondhead building $4 million complex

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
 Site preparation is underway in the Diamondhead Community for an estimated $4 million townhouse condominium complex.
 Diamondhead's Fairway Villa motel will be relocated near I-10 in November to provide property for future condominium development.
 Holcomb Hector, vice president and general manager of the Diamondhead Project for the Diamondhead Corp., said Thursday morning, "We are constructing a new condominium complex near the 18th fairway of the new golf course just off Golf Club Drive, immediately west of the country club."
 The vice president reported 160 condominium townhouses will be constructed in four phases of 40 units each with the construction cost for the first phase estimated to be "in excess of $1 million."

 "U.S. Atlantic Corp., a Diamondhead Corp. home building subsidiary, will construct the townhouses," he added.
 "The condominiums will be cedar buildings compatible with existing architecture in Diamondhead," Hector explained.
 Hector said the one and two bedroom townhouses will each have a fireplace and patio with an estimated market value of $50,000-$75,000 per unit.
 "We also plan to relocate our motel (Fairway Villa) from its present location near the Magnolia Golf Course's 18th fairway (south of the Country Club) to some commercial property near the northeast corner of I-10," the vice president reported.
 Hector said the 80-unit motel will be moved in 12 separate sections in November which will make a five-acre site available for additional condominium development.

 However, no date has been set for construction of condominiums at the motel site.
 The vice president explained, "The reason for the move is to free an area near the country club for condominium development and the motel will be relocated to a more appropriate commercial area."
 Hector said the motel would not cater to tourist trade, but would continue to be used as a drawing card for "convention and golf packages."
 When asked if there would be additional development of Diamondhead's shopping center area, Hector replied, "We don't have any immediate plans for the shopping center."
 Hector also said the relocation of the motel would not effect any other existing structures in the area.
 Concerning rumors that Diamondhead's corporate office, now located in Hancock County, was moving, Hector replied, "There will be a partial move. We will have an additional corporate office in Pinehurst, N.C."
 Pinehurst is another Diamondhead housing development and golf resort area near the U.S. Army's Fort Bragg.
 The vice president explained, "About six people from Diamondhead will be moving to Pinehurst. Artis James, corporate president, and several staff members are moving."
 Hector said the reason for the move was because "we have not been actively involved in our pinehurst development" and the company plans to increase its involvement in that area.
 "James will also maintain an office at Diamondhead," he added.
 An informed source said the services of an independent management firm at the Pinehurst development were terminated and the partial corporate move was designed to improve sales operations at the North Carolina resort.
 The Diamondhead Corp. was previously headquartered in Algiers, La. and moved to Mississippi in Feb., 1979.

At county schools

Morrison's declines cafeteria management

By RICH ADAMS
 Morrison's Management Services, Incorporated, under consideration to assume management of Hancock County District school cafeterias, declined the job Friday and offered suggestions of improvement to the current management.
 In a letter to Superintendent Billy D. Sils, Morrison's Vice President Ned Gioveli said "We do not feel we can do much to strengthen the present program."
 Gioveli commended cafeteria supervisor Sarah Shyu for the job she has done since becoming manager of the cafeteria system last year, and offered "constructive criticism" of the current management.
 Gioveli said the inventory rate is too high, noting a count is being conducted once every 10 days.

"A physical inventory should be taken once a month," the letter reads.
 "Unless food costs rise in the near

Hancock hospital board bans press coverage

By RICH ADAMS
 The Hancock General Hospital Board of Trustees Thursday night rejected press coverage of a joint meeting with members of the county board of supervisors.
 Rev. Charles Johnson, hospital board president, said later the Thursday night session at the hospital was an "unofficial discussion during which no decisions were made."
 As the first item of business at Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting, Johnson polled board members on whether they favored or opposed allowing a Sea Coast Echo representative to attend the meeting.
 Trustee Lydia Schultz, whose resignation from the hospital board is effective next week, was the only member who voted to keep the meeting public.
 Board members Robert Baxter, Conrad Mauffray, and Brother Martin voted to exclude the public.
 Trustees Perry Gibson and David Peranich abstained from voting on the matter.
 Dr. Joseph Lee, who will replace Schultz on the hospital board, attended Thursday's meeting but took no active part in the decision to close the session to the public.
 Peranich suggested Johnson release information "as he deemed proper" following the meeting.
 Also at Thursday's meeting were hospital attorney Sam Favre, Supervisors Bert Courrage, Roger Dale Ladner, Alton A. (Dolph) Kellar, and Sam Pernicaro.

 Chancery Court Clerk E. Michael Necaise and supervisors attorney Walter Gex were also present.
 Hospital Administrator Harry Gilmore was "not included in the meeting," according to Johnson.
 Johnson said Friday the meeting developed into a "...general discussion of the hospital, no action was taken."

 The hospital board president declined to elaborate further on the discussion.
 Public hospital boards of trustees are the only public bodies in Mississippi which are excluded from the provisions of the state's open meetings law.

Architect says pool problem not serious

By RICH ADAMS
 Repairs to the floor of Buccaneer State Park's Wave Pool, portions of which have separated due to use of an improper bonding agent during construction, will begin shortly after the Labor Day weekend, according to project architect Fred Wagner.
 The pool was completed and opened for public use this spring.
 Wagner said the adhesive which holds plaster to the cement slab in the shallow end is not working properly and the plaster is peeling.
 The architect refuted speculation that, because the pool is so close to the Mississippi Sound, underground water pressure is forcing the flooring to crack and dislodge.
 "That is so unlikely I will say it is almost impossible. The water pressure is not that great beneath the pool," Wagner said Wednesday.

 "The shallow end is raised some three to four feet above the water level, and although the deep end is about four feet above the water table, the chance water pressure is causing the separation is almost impossible," he continued.
 Further evidence shows the floor is pulling loose in areas other than at the structural joints," he added.
 Wagner said he and the contractor, Carter and Mullins of Columbia, Miss., have studied samples of flooring which have separated, and "We all agree the problem is in the bonding agent."
 "The project is under warranty and the contractors have agreed to take appropriate action," Wagner added.
 Wagner said repairs will probably not begin until the pool begins winter hours, opening only on weekends following the Labor Day holiday.

 "I don't believe we will have to shut the pool off completely unless separation begins in the deep end. We will probably drain the pool halfway on a Monday and see what condition the flooring is in," Wagner said.

Pearlington man charged with fondling 4-year-old

By ELLIS CUEVAS
 Newman Lagarde, 50, General Delivery, Pearllington, has been charged with the alleged August 10 fondling of a four-year-old girl, according to Sheriff Ronald Peterson.
 Lagarde was arrested on the same day by Deputies Willie Lee and David Garcia.
 Peterson said a preliminary hearing was held on August 13 before Justice Court Judge Lee Klien and Lagarde was bound over to the October Grand Jury.
 The girl was checked by a local doctor, according to Peterson. Investigator Delbert Seay is in charge of the case.

 Lagarde is detained in the Hancock County jail under a $5,000 bond.
 In other police activities, Hancock deputies arrested four persons Saturday morning on Beach Boulevard in the Clermont Harbor area and charged them for the alleged possession and distribution of a controlled substance. One of the four has an additional charge of reckless driving, according to Sheriff Ronald

Bidding snags airport repairs

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
 The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission could not accept an insurance adjuster's proposal Thursday night to repair Stennis International Airport's hanger because of bid advertising requirements.
 Commission Attorneys Robert Genin and Gerald Gex reported the hanger roof repairs, estimated $8,000-$20,000, should be evaluated by an architect, specifications outlined and advertised for bids before any contracts can be awarded.
 The airport hanger roof was damaged earlier this year by a tornado which also destroyed several aircraft at the county facility.

Independent insurance adjuster Charles Hoffman, representing Truett Insurance Agency, Inc. of Bay St. Louis, said Commission Director W. Wilson Webre received a $20,000 estimate from a Hattiesburg contractor.
 Webre's assistant Paulette Fernandez reported the director could not attend the meeting because he was attending his daughter's college graduation ceremonies.
 Hoffman stated he had received an estimate of $18,345 and that both bids were for the roof's replacement.
 "However, we talked with W.E. Smallwood Builders of Gulfport and they gave us a bid for $8,519," Hoffman said.
 Smallwood's representative Gary White explained to the commission, "Other contractors propose to replace the entire roof, but the roof is not in that bad a shape. The roof fasteners are loose and they have acted like a wick causing the leaks."
 "We would replace all the fasteners and put a coating on the roof. Every fastener is rusted," White added.
 Commission President James DeBlanc asked, "The roof panels are not rusted, are they?"
 White replied, "No sir, but if something isn't done soon the panels will rust right through."
 Commissioner Ronnie Artiques said, "You won't give a warranty for repairs either."
 White replied, "No, but we stand

Allain, Ainsworth to speak at 16th Section confab

By RICH ADAMS

Mississippi Secretary of State Ed Pittman and former State Land Commissioner John Ed Ainsworth will be featured speakers at a 16th Section Land conference scheduled Sept. 15-17 at Diamondhead.

The event is co-sponsored by the Hancock County School District and 16th Section Land Consultant Terrell Randolph.

Randolph told the board Friday that new laws will be discussed at the conference, adding that supervisors and Chancery Court clerks could "grasp a deeper understanding of the laws" if they attend.

"I feel as if Hancock County is a leader in 16th Section Land reform, and I believe the supervisors and Chancery clerks could benefit from the conference," Randolph told the board.

In addition to Ainsworth and Pittman, State Superintendent of Education, Dr. Charles Holliday, will also speak at the event.

Agencies participating in the three-day conference are the State Public Lands Division, the State Forestry Commission, Office of the Attorney General, Research and Development Center, and State Department of Audit.

In a related matter Friday, Randolph asked the school board to clarify its request for a list of 16th section land, which will be investigated for inadequate leases.

Board President Woodrow Ladner told Randolph to compile a list of 16th Section leases and mark any he considers inadequate.

Randolph told Ladner the board should make the determination if any are inadequate, but said he will compile the list.

The board also discussed regaining 16th Section property belonging to the Hancock District which is currently on the Poyune School District's tax roll.

The land was 'loaned' to the Poyune district some years ago so students in that area could attend Poyune schools, but the board now wants the land, classified as 16th Section, back since students no longer live in that area.

Woodrow Ladner said he will contact the Poyune School Board president and set up a meeting.

future, the price charged for school lunches is adequate," Givell continued.

"Breakfast prices are too low and should be increased," he added.

"Hot and cold lunch items should be offered on all three lines in the high school cafeteria so students will have a choice in all lines and can eat with friends," Givell stated.

He recommended milk prices be raised to seven cents.

Board Member Monvel Cuevas said all the suggestions should be considered.

Board President Woodrow Ladner suggested Sills write a letter to Givell thanking him for the critique.

In other business Wednesday morning, the board adopted a student transfer policy recommended by Sills at a previous meeting.

The policy states no child may transfer into a Hancock County District school without the permission of the principal and the board.

Woodrow Ladner objected to the wording of the policy which allowed a "designated member of the superintendent's staff" to approve a transfer.

"The matter should be handled first by the principal of the school. He is the first involved and would know if there is room at the school," Ladner said.

Monvel Cuevas said he had understood the school board had a previous policy which prohibited any student outside the district from transferring to county schools.

Sills said that policy was in effect during 1977 and ended at the conclusion of that school year.

Board Member Louie Ladner moved to accept Sills' policy, which was seconded by Oris Ladner and approved by the board.

Also Wednesday, the board approved the resignation of four teachers whose resignations were being held pending employment of their replacements.

Cuevas' motion to release all the teachers occurred after the board received a resignation from Lenette Necaise, a physical education and English instructor at Hancock North Central.

Sills said it is 'unfair' to hold the teachers since they all have jobs at other districts pending.

Oris Ladner, Monvel Cuevas, and Woodrow Ladner all voted in favor of releasing the teachers. Johnny Banks and Louis Ladner opposed the release.

"I am voting against Ms. Necaise leaving. She is too good to give up,"

Banks said.

"I voted no because we have a policy on the books and we are going against that policy," Louie Ladner told the board.

In other business, the board accepted a bid on all products from Chevron of Atlanta, Ga.

Woodrow Ladner had suggested Saturday the board go with the high bid from Monroe Shell because he said the chief bus mechanic had stated Shell products are being used in the buses now, and a change may damage the engine.

"I was wrong. I talked to the chief mechanic and he said we are using Chevron products now. We can accept the lower bid," Ladner said Wednesday.

Banks moved the board accept the bid by Chevron, which was unanimously approved.

The board also accepted a bid from Weaver and Sons of Gulfport for re-installation of sewer and gas lines and repair of a cafeteria grease trap.

The Gulfport company was the low bidder of the four bids received, asking $9,500 for the total project.

In a breakdown of the three jobs, Weaver and Sons bid $3,850 on the gas line work, $5,250 on the sewer line job, and $400 to repair the grease trap.

Other bids received were: Coast Maintenance Company of Gulfport, $4,592 on the gas lines, $5,690 on the sewer work, and $600 on the grease trap, with a total of $10,782;

Omega Co. of Waveland, which bid $6,000 for the gas lines, $5,000 for the sewer lines, and $1,000 on the grease trap, for a total of $12,000;

And K&K Plumbing and Heating of Bay St. Louis, which bid $6,132 for the gas project, $5,150 on the sewer job, and $1,250 on the grease trap, for a total discounted to $11,500.

The board also approved final payment of $10,380 to Gulf Electric for repair work to the tornado-damaged Gulfview Elementary School.

A payment of $16,440 was made to Bay Contractors for work completed at Clermont Harbor School. A balance of $2,800 is being withheld pending inspection of the repairs.

The board then toured the district schools to ensure all facilities are prepared to open next week.

The board will meet again Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Peterson. "Deputy David Garcia and Glenn Jackson, auxiliary deputy, were traveling west on the beach and saw a vehicle traveling east at a high rate of speed strike the guard rail sway across the road and then leave the road and hit some 'pot holes' and stop," Peterson said.

The sheriff added, "Three of the occupants got out of the vehicle, but had to hold onto the car to keep from falling, as they seemed to be in an intoxicated state. A fourth occupant remained in the car."

The deputies saw some pills in plastic bags on the seats of the car and asked the occupant to get out, and he had to be helped out as he could not stand up."

Arrested were Robert K. O'Neill, 19, and Brian L. O'Neill, 20, both of 108 Nutria Drive, Arabi, La.; Keith Lataxes, 19, 217 Beaver Drive, Arabi; and Warren V. Groomer, 19, 7821 New Castle St., New Orleans. Groomer, listed as driver of the vehicle, had bond set at $5,500 with the three others' bond at $5,000 each.

The sheriff said the bags contained 96 quads better known as 'quays' on the street.

The four were booked at the Hancock Jail at 3 a.m. Saturday and are being held for an appearance before Justice Court Judge Lee Klein. Investigator Delbert Seay is handling the case, Peterson stated.

BEWARE OF RESTRICTIONS

The courts permit and give funds for less property owners to put in questionable and risky deeds to buyers reasonable restrictions on the use of the real estate being transferred. It might be looked upon as zoning on a very personal basis.

For example, a home in a commercially zoned area may have a restriction against use for any commercial purpose. This may be OK for the first buyer who plans to live in the house, but a lending institution may refuse to loan any money on it because commercial use may be the only reason for a new purchaser to buy it. They prefer to play it safe.

From the point of view of the buyer, it is preferable that the agreement enumerate any and all restrictions. The point is this: If there ARE restrictions, bring them out in the open and get the advice of your Realtor or attorney before going any further. It's for your own protection.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at PRESSMAN REALTY, 1332 Hwy. 90 W., Waveland. Phone 467-2224. We're here to help!

PULPIT POINTS
L. S. WALKER, D.D.
GOOD RIDDANCE! people often exclaim, when they rid themselves of unwanted rubbish of whatever kind. There are some things we constantly find in our lives which we would do well to get rid of as soon as possible.

The wise housewife has the courage to rid her house of many things which have become an embarrassment. Even the attic or the unused garage must now and then be rummaged through, if only to make way for later additions of things that are so difficult to discard.

At a very turbulent time in his life, King David prayed: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." (Ps. 51:10).

What about a good cleaning out of our "upper story"? Why not a planned and deliberate riddance of mental rubbish that has accumulated?

A good beginning would be to get rid of our old hates and jealousies. What if someone did treat us badly last year—or the year before? It is sure time to wipe out the feeling of resentment. "Getting even" is no way to settle that. The wise counsel of God's Word says, "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." (Rom. 12:19-21).

We too often nurture anger, perhaps with what we consider ample justification. Why let it burn? That temper flare-up at the time of the offense may have seemed only natural. But is there any sense in feeding the flame? We just cannot keep it burning without its burning us.

Most of us give time and space to non-essentials, habits of laziness, procrastination and good intentions never put into practice. If we are wise, and want our lives to be successful to the fullest degree, we have got to look into the windows of our hearts and take careful inventory of what we are; what we have; of what we cling to most, and why. Then will come housecleaning. At times it takes great wisdom and courage if we are to discard those things which are handicaps to the all-important business of successful Christian living.

The Bible puts it this way: "Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrites, and envies, and all evil speaking, as newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby." (1 Peter 2:1-2).

"Let us lay aside every weight," Paul writes to the Hebrews, "and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; . . ." (Heb. 12:1-2).

Every life needs a periodic cleaning out of accumulated rubbish. Now, that you have taken the time to read and consider this suggestion, what do you plan to do about it?

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

Easier to die
Q. I don't think I'll ever be happy again. One night while our 10-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son were sleeping my husband became very angry and said he was going to punish me.

We had been having marriage problems and were about to separate. That night I went through a nightmare of fear from the things he put me through. Then while he thought I was asleep or passed out he took out a gun.

While he was in another room I managed to get out and run to a neighbor for help. The next news was that my children and husband were dead. I know I would have been killed too if I hadn't gotten out when I did, but I find it so terribly hard to live with.

Sometimes it seems it would be easier if I had died with them rather than try to cope. I have felt so much guilt because I was going to leave my husband, and I want nothing out of life if I can't have my children.

A. You did not know he was going to kill your children and your action, taken in terror, was a normal response to the situation as you saw it at the time. You have no need to suffer from guilt. Despite your natural longing for your children, your job is to stand up to your situation, ask God's help, and live your life with dignity and goodness.

We are placing you on our mailing list to receive Creative Help for Daily Living which we hope will help you rebuild your life. Anyone wishing to receive these monthly inspirational mailings may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Can't hold a candle
Q. I started seeing a fellow several months ago, and I have a feeling he may be "the one." Only problem is that he is backing off. He broke off a relationship with an old fiancée who is now getting married. He says he blew it and doesn't want to do that again, but he is doing the same thing with me! He says his feelings for me haven't changed, yet I don't hear from him. I've prayed for patience and strength to wait it out while he goes through whatever he's going through. I don't want to be pushy, but I just can't give up. No one else can hold a candle to him.

A. He may be all that great, or seem so, but if he is going to be the one again, off-again type, better find it out now than later. What you want in a man is some decisiveness and fidelity. Go easy with this "no one else can hold a candle to him" fellow. He may blow out that candle.

Everyone is talking about the tremendous improvements which have been made since Wednesday on the American Legion pier in Bay St. Louis.

Supervisor Sam Perniciaro should be commended on his assistance in cleaning up the boat launch. It is something so desperately needed for our communities.

We have had so many folks tell us how happy they are that the pier is again reopened.

Use of the facility was immediately after the obstructions from the road were removed.

It will be an interesting race come November for the Presidency of the United States.

Like everyone knew before the two conventions, the selections of Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter by their respective parties were no surprise.

It is amazing how both parties have persons seeking the parties' nomination and when someone else is selected, the parties become united behind their choice.

Oh!, well, it is politics.

We are happy to see the Bay St. Louis and Waveland American Legion Posts make a sizeable contribution to the Hancock County Junior Deputies.

All businesses and individuals who have made contributions, should be thanked for realizing the importance of the youth having knowledge of law enforcement.

We wish the program success and are sure you will see the young men and women in uniform throughout the country at selected tasks.

It will not be too long before the whistle will be blowing for the opening of the 1980 football season in our area.

Hundreds of young men and their coaches have been out during pre-season, even with the temperatures bouncing around 100 degrees.

We hope all of you plan on attending the games this Fall to cheer on your favorites to victory.

We have survived the sewer installation in Bay St. Louis and Waveland. We have also seen additions in both cities.

The work being done in the 500 blocks of deMontluzin, State, Main and St. John Streets is about some of the smoothest we have ever seen.

We realize the weather has been very good, which is a tremendous help, but the contractor has been doing things which we thought others should have all along. One thing in particular, cover the work before you go home at night or over the weekend.

We know we are not engineers, but we would like to commend the contractor for being one of the most conscientious we have ever seen work in our area.

The opening of the streets at night whenever possible is really appreciated by us all.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I ran this ad, featuring custom sun roofs for automobiles at a 10 per cent discount, in a recent Sunday edition and got no response. What Did I Do Wrong?

Dear WDDIW: If anything, you may have overestimated the knowledge of your prospects—which is quite easy to do. You, of course, are very familiar with the business. But many of your prospects will have wide gaps in their information about your products and service.

For instance, the ad featured two illustrations of sun roof designs, but I had to read the ad to be sure what they were. And quite frankly I wasn't sure about one of them until I looked at an automobile in which a similar one was installed.

It seems like a good idea—but several questions come immediately to mind. How much does it cost—without this basic knowledge the 10 per cent discount is meaningless. I'm sure there are a number of styles and that costs vary with the difficulty of installation, but some benchmark figure would help me decide.

Other questions that occurred to me included: Are they guaranteed not to leak? Do they create any noise problems? How much heat gain is there? You indicate in your letter 95 per cent of your business is referrals and that you have a reputation for quality work and customer satisfaction.

This suggests a different approach from the one you used.

I would use an illustration of someone with his or her automobile in which one of your sun roofs had been installed.

The headline could be along this line: If your auto came without a sun roof, consider yourself lucky!

The copy would include essentially the same material you used with the inclusion of a suggestion of price. If the answers to the other questions I posed are reasonably positive they might also be included.

I would also use the name of the company in a different size type.

To say the ad produced no results might not be entirely accurate. There's no way to calculate how many may have seen your ad—and thought about checking with you for a price. If they decide in the future to pursue the matter they may look you up. And if someone asks if there is a local company which installs sun roofs, you may be recommended by someone who has no other knowledge about you than this one time ad.

Selecting a car care section for the ad was probably a wise choice. In doing so you reached an audience that is very much into automobiles. And chances are that the ad will have a quite long life, due to the number of copies that will be tucked by for future reference.

Health Tip

From the American Medical Association

Symbol of Health Needs Is Worldwide

All over the world a simple six-sided figure has become the symbol of identification of personal medical problems.

The 'symbol' was adopted by the American Medical Association in the early 1960's, and in the mid-1960's by the World Medical Association as the universal indication that the individual displaying the sign has personal health problems that might require emergency attention.

An emergency medical identification-card is useful to identify an ill or injured person, to help locate family, friends and personal physician, and to give information that will improve emergency care. People with special health problems often wear a durable metal or plastic disk on wrist or ankle or around the neck indicating need of special medical care.

The emergency medical symbol should note special problems that need immediate attention in an emergency, or that could cause an emergency. For example, diabetics must be identified so that a person in a diabetic coma will get proper treatment promptly and needed doses of insulin will not be overlooked.

Need for certain medicines must be known to first aiders. Heart patients taking drugs to prevent blood clots may bleed profusely if injured unless they receive special care. Some individuals are highly allergic to certain drugs, such as penicillin. Epileptics could be saved much trouble and unnecessary hospitalization if they carried cards indicating that they might have seizures.

Senator Cochran reports

The Senate has accepted an amendment by Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) urging the administration to seek an international solution to the Cuban refugee problem.

Cochran's amendment was to the 1981 foreign aid bill being debated on the Senate floor.

He told colleagues the Carter administration should initiate "greater efforts to encourage the participation of other nations in the resettlement and financing of the costs of resettlement of the Cuban refugees."

The Senator noted that while over 100,000 Cuban refugees have poured into the United States, other nations have indicated willingness to accept only about 3,300. He called on the administration to seek help in resettling the Cuban refugees through international organizations such as the United Nations and the Organization of American States.

"We have consistently welcomed more refugees to our shores than any other country in the world," Senator Cochran commented, but added the United States "cannot be expected to shoulder alone what is in actuality a burden for the whole free world to carry."

Senator Cochran contended "the lack of a significant international response may be due, in part, to the administration's policies," which he said the American people perceive to be "badly confused."

He pointed out the sudden influx of Cuban refugees, which totals at least 113,000 as of mid-June, could cost American taxpayers over $380 million and carries "social and economic costs which the American people are unprepared to bear, particularly at this time of economic recession and uncertainty."

His amendment was adopted as the Senate took up the $4.8 billion 1981 foreign aid authorization bill.

News from the governor's office

Governor William Winter last week announced implementation of a program allowing over 400 state prison inmates to receive job training and job placement assistance.

Sponsored jointly by the Governor's Office of Job Development and Training and the Mississippi State Employment Security Commission, the $850,000 program is designed to train inmates for skilled employment and to eliminate overcrowding at the 3,200-inmate Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman.

According to Winter, after careful screening, prisoners will receive training and then be placed in private sector jobs at the rate of about 40 prisoners per week.

"This program will provide some people with the opportunity for the first time in their lives to have gainful employment," the governor said.

Winter, who after touring the prison in May expressed the desire to beef up training programs, cited figures which showed that of the 1,200 inmates eligible for work release annually, more than 25 percent have no job counseling or developmental assistance.

Winter said the average inmate at the state penitentiary has an eighth grade education or less and most have never held a permanent job more than six months.

"These are people who are desperately in need of some assistance in getting them installed in a meaningful work situation," Winter said. "I think this program will help provide meaningful work for inmates and in this way allow them to make a living, gain self respect, and take care of their families."

Prisoners eligible for parole or work release will be considered for placement. In most instances, employers who hire the inmates may receive federal tax credits.

Winter also announced last week the receipt of $457,000 in federal funds for use in renovation of local jails. The funds are available immediately subject to approval of local grant applications by the Criminal Justice Planning Commission.

The program is designed to provide assistance to county and municipal governments for renovation of existing jail structures and allows for expansion and renovation to reduce overcrowding, provide increased safety and sanitation, or allow sufficient space for development of diagnostic and rehabilitative services.

Funds may be used for such things as exercise yards, enlarging cells, replacing bathroom and shower facilities, new beds and fire proof mattresses, new electrical wiring systems, new security and fire prevention systems, or other necessary improvements.

COSTS COME IN MANY FORMS

Costs of doing business in the nation and in Mississippi have risen dramatically during the latter part of the 1970's, with the resulting increases being passed on to the consumer.

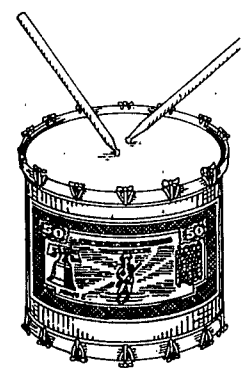

These rising costs have come from a variety of sources — inflation, energy, government regulation — but there is one area often overlooked but nonetheless important — product liability.

An insurance information institute reported that product liability suits filed in ten U.S. Circuit Court areas increased from 1,579 in 1974 to 4,372 suits in 1978. In the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court District — of which Mississippi is a part — the number of suits increased from 348 in 1974 to 1,028 in 1978. The number of product liability suits filed in Mississippi increased from 30 to 99 suits during the four-year period.

Not only are the number of suits increasing but also the costs involved in the suits are increasing steadily. This means that both the potential liability and the legal expense of defending against such suits have increased, resulting in higher product liability insurance coverage. The higher insurance rates are, therefore, passed on to the consumer in higher costs.

It is generally agreed that the consumer needs to be protected against defective products, but business also needs to be protected against increased and unreasonable product liability litigation.

The Mississippi Economic Council recommends lawmakers take a closer look at legislation regarding product liability. Statutes should be enacted providing that any cause of action from outside Mississippi will be barred within the state if it is barred where the cause of action occurred by a lesser statute of limitation. Also, as an affirmative defense in such cases, manufacturers should be allowed to produce proof that the product was manufactured in such a manner as to meet existing standards and practices of the industry at the time the product was manufactured or processed.

Thigpen urges seniors to write family history

By GRADY THIGPEN

A young lady came to my desk, introduced herself and told me, "I am trying to find out where I have come from."

She said, "In one of your books you mentioned one of my grandfathers. I want to know if you have other information about him. I want to get all the information I can about those from whom I am descended."

In talking to this intelligent young woman I found out that she did not know the maiden name of either of her grandmothers, and knew very little about one of her grandfathers. She did not know where any of her forebears came from to this area or why they came here.

She said, "I am ashamed that I know so little about my folks." Many people, if not most, know very little about "where they came from."

I find that many people now are more than ever interested in "Where they came from."

Older people can make a great contribution to those who come after them by writing out in their own language everything they know about the folks from whom they are descended.

In writing a personal history it is more interesting if all the old tales parents and grandparents like to tell are recorded as well as telling the real facts of life.

Both my mother and my father in their old age, at the urging of a sister of mine and myself, wrote good histories of themselves. We children gained much knowledge of "Where they came from" from reading these personal histories.

Both of them were born and grew up during and just after the civil war and their memories of reconstruction days in the area devastated by Sherman's army on its march from Vicksburg to Atlanta are great records of those dark days.

I published a small book of these memories by my mother.

The 1,000 of these little books I had printed are all gone.

A good number of people have told me that her memories of that period are the best they have seen of that dark time in our history.

Their memories as written out by our parents have been most interesting to all their children.

This experience of my own makes me believe that you could not make a better or more appreciated contribution to your children than to write your memories now before it is too late.

I got a good knowledge of "Where I came from" in reading these stories by my parents.

I knew both my grandfathers and both my grandmothers. I also knew personally two great grandmothers and one great grandfather.

I heard another great grandfather talked about so much that I felt like I knew him. He came to this country from Ireland, married my great grandmother up at Paulding in Jasper County.

He was a printer and worked on the Eastern Clarion, a paper published at Paulding, the old time county seat of Jasper county.

When the paper was moved to Jackson in the late 1840s or early 1850s, this great grandfather left home with considerable money to go to Jackson or Natchez and arrange for employment and a home to which to move his family.

Travel was slow in those days. After he had been gone for some time and the family had not heard from him, they wrote the authorities to find out something about him.

They got a letter from Natchez stating that he had been robbed and murdered in that old time southwest Mississippi city. There was much other interesting information in these old stories by my parents.

Everyone has two parents, 4 grandparents, 8 great grandparents and 16 great great grandparents.

A young man has been reputed to have applied for a job and to have stated that he was a descendant of Benjamin Franklin as his reference for being qualified for the position he was seeking.

The prospective employer told him, according to the story, that the reference to Franklin was fine, but that he had descended from about 15 other great grandparents and what about them?

To me it is most interesting to note that at 90 years old, I've lived 44 percent of the time since the Declaration of Independence.

Still more interesting to me is the fact that there is only one man between me and a soldier in the revolutionary army.

My grandfather was born in 1819. He knew well an uncle of his that served in the revolutionary army. My grandfather in 1906 died at 85. If the uncle had been 22 when he served in Washington's army he would have been 65 when my grandfather was born, and 85 years old when my grandfather was 37.

I believe this kind of information will be most interesting to my children, grandchildren, great grandchildren and others to follow.

It is my experience that everyone has an interesting story if he will go into it and think it out and put it into writing for future generations. I have been fortunate enough to get a number of life stories of old people in this area for my Sunday radio programs.

Without exception these stories are interesting. For instance, the first Lumpkin to come to this area, according to one of his descendants, came with a wife and 2 children, along with one horse to carry their few belongings, and to be ridden part time by the woman and the children.

They came all the way from Georgia, living off the land as they made their way.

When they got to the East Hobolochitto the water was high and they could not cross it. After staying there for a week or so they came to like the area and decided this was "the promised land" for them.

To me this is an exceptionally interesting story of the early days of one of the most prominent families living in this part of the country.

I urge that everyone write a history of the family beginnings in this area.

If a copy of such a story is written I'll be glad to broadcast it over the radio and turn it over to the Sea Coast Echo for publication in the course of time.

If you undertake to write your history of your family, I promise you that you'll become tremendously interested when you get into the facts of how your grandparents lived, why they came here, and other information about your ancestors.

There are many French people living east of Poycune. It would be most interesting if any of the descendants of the early French settlers would give a detailed history of their coming from France and why they settled here.

When I first started in business in Poycune in 1919, I often had old people come in from east of Poycune who spoke French fluently.

One old man told me a most amusing story about his father meeting a French girl. He could speak no French and she could speak no English, so he told me.

I asked, "How did they do their courting when they could not talk to one another?" This old man told me, "You don't have to know how to talk to make love and get married."

Maybe the schools would like to in some way encourage such a project as I have written about. If there was a good response with valuable information in it, probably a book could be published containing the stories that are best written for publication.

New neighborhood group hears local officials

Hancock County Sheriff Ron Peterson, Inspector Don Murray, and Fire Administrator Bill Field spoke to the Garden Island Community Association's second general meeting Sunday August 3 at the Gulf National Bank building.

Peterson urged use of 911 to report emergencies or criminal activities in order to receive prompt attention by his department.

Patrol car surveillance of the subdivision is minimal because only two patrol cars are available to cover the entire county.

However, if repeated instances of speeding occurs on subdivision roads, patrol cars can increase surveillance periodically.

Peterson recommended the appointment of two Garden Island residents as auxiliary deputies to assist in law enforcement in the subdivision.

Inspector Don Murray of the County Planning Commission explained the need to obtain permits for construction in the subdivision with the requirement that all living quarters be based above the 13.1 feet mean tide level.

Murray emphasized trailers or mobile homes may not be moved into the subdivision.

Power Service cannot be installed without a permit from his office. These permits include the 13.1 feet requirement.

However, restrictive covenants governing the sale of property in Garden Island (Shoreline Estates) Subdivision state that all dwellings shall be of permanent construction and be of one family type units. This would preclude unanchored trailers or mobile homes.

Furthermore trailers and mobile homes represent an increased fire and other damage hazard because of their higher susceptibility to tornado or hurricane winds and high water than permanently constructed homes.

Fire Administrator Bill Field described the present status of the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department and expressed the need for community financial support.

Much additional equipment of fight fires is needed in addition to that being purchased with revenue sharing funds or other federal and county funds.

Mrs. Geri Boulet of Skyline Drive was elected secretary of the association.

Proposed bylaws of the Association were read, corrected and approved.

Association president Les Page also reported on the results of a conference with Supervisor James Travira concerning road improvements in the subdivision.

Three subdivision roads are being re-surfaced this year, Azalea Drive, Garden Road, and Riverview Drive.

Travira will accept recommendations from the association for road and street marker improvements in 1981.

Ints For Homeowners

Home Improvement, Safety And Economy

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Considering the uncertain state of the economy, the fact that modern employment schedules provide more free time, and the difficulty of getting a repair or improvement contractor when most needed, it's no wonder homeowners and apartment dwellers, too are becoming skilled amateur repairers and improvers in ever-increasing numbers.

While expense-saving is doubtless the main attraction, pride of personal accomplishment in expanding one's capabilities comes a close second.

If you think you're "all thumbs" and have therefore shunned the do-it-yourself trend, why not try with a very easy but highly rewarding project requiring only basic and minimal investment tools?

Surveys show that more storage is a major need of most families—shelves are a quick answer, with only a measuring tape, saw and screwdriver to complete the job.

Dripping faucets are a nuisance, energy-wasteful, and really inexcusable—when a few washers, a Crescent adjustable wrench and that same screwdriver will solve the problem.

Is the lawn mower's rotary blade just chomping, not cleanly cutting the grass? All it takes is a restore a chisel-sharp edge.

If lack of experience makes you hesitate, talk to your neighborhood "know-how" hardware dealer.

School officials ok windmill installation

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees agreed Monday night to place the City of Bay St. Louis to allow two experimental electric power generating windmills at Bay Senior High School.

The board approved placement of the windmills for two years with a three-year renewable option, requiring the city to maintain the experimental generators during the five-year period.

Board President Pro-tem Maurice Singleton of Bay St. Louis said, "They're ready to start working on these windmills right now."

Board Attorney Lucien Gex of Waveland reported, "From what I understand from this proposal, the federal government can either take back the windmills or give them to the city at the end of the experiment."

"The questions I have about this is they don't say how long the experiment will be and don't say anything about maintenance," Gex added.

"The other question is liability, but the federal government is immune and right now we're immune from any lawsuits," the board attorney reported.

Singleton stated, "This is an experiment, it's free and we can pay for some of the maintenance for the upkeep of these windmills."

Gex said, "There's nothing saying the district can't make an agreement with the city to maintain the windmills. What if a windmill blade breaks off, who's going to replace it?"

Singleton stated, "The city needs an answer pretty soon."

Gex suggested, "You might want to accept the proposal on a temporary basis."

Board Member Betty Diboll of Waveland stated, "We might like the windmills so much we would want to keep them."

Ward Two City Councilman James Thrifflay said Thursday morning, "Solar Power, Inc. of New Orleans, a franchise dealer of Intertek of Vermont, will maintain the windmills during the first year of operation."

"During the year we will have our own maintenance people working with Solar Power to learn how to work on the windmills," Thrifflay stated.

"Bay St. Louis will be responsible for maintaining all of our windmills," the city councilman added.

Regarding the length of the experiment, Thrifflay said, "We have not been advised of any set time."

"In this experiment, Mississippi Power Co. and the city will place monitoring devices on the windmills and make that data available to the federal government, but we have not formulated a schedule yet," Thrifflay explained.

The city councilman said the city would sell any excess electricity generated by the windmills to the power company.

Thrifflay reported the two Bay High windmills will supply electricity for the gym, administrative complex and several classrooms.

Three more windmills will supply electricity for City Hall, and the fire and police stations.

Regarding life and hospitalization insurance for district teachers, Lynn Parrish of Bay St. Louis (representing the Insurance Committee formed by the board) reported that an optional program with both Blue Cross and American Fidelity Insurance companies was recommended by the committee.

The board took no action on the proposal.

Superintendent of Education J.D. McCulloch questioned the legality of the program, but Mississippi Association of Educators Field Staff Member Burt Barrett of Bay St. Louis reported the proposed program is all perfectly legal.

Andrews Wilkinson of Waveland, president of Bay St. Louis Local American Federation of Teachers, questioned the committee's decision not to place the insurance package in an open bidding situation. Wilkinson asked the board to advertise for bids.

Regarding roofing work at the senior high school, the board approved a written recommendation submitted by District Architect Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis to repair the gym roof and replace the cafeteria roof.

McCulloch reported, "We have six of eight spots in the gym roof that need repainting and the entire cafeteria roof has to be replaced."

"The board needs to approve the two projects because the financing for the cafeteria roof will come through the State Educational Finance Commission," the superintendent explained.

McCulloch said the cafeteria roofing work is estimated at $12,500 and the gym roof repair is estimated at $1,200.

Former president Lana Noonan of the North Bay Elementary Parent-Teacher Organization asked when the leaks occurred.

McCulloch replied he did not make the recommendation, but Wagner did.

In regard to a job description for a "business manager" for the district, McCulloch presented copies of the job's requirements to the board.

After the meeting, McCulloch said the position required a bachelor's degree in accounting and four years experience as a certified public accountant.

The superintendent reported that the manager's duties will include developing and maintaining a financial system and analysis of district finances.

"Terms and conditions of employment include special seasonal responsibilities—end of the year closing of books, an annual budget and a year-end report," McCulloch explained.

The superintendent added that the position is a full-time position with nine days of vacation per year.

In other business, at the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the superintendent's senior high school offices, the board:

—Authorized a $115 Title 4, Part C payment. However, the superintendent would not reveal what the payment to the government was specifically for;

—Authorized a letter be sent to Special Education Supervisor Brenda Scaffid congratulating her for earning a doctoral degree;

—Approved a list of bus drivers for the 1980-81 school year as submitted by McCulloch. The superintendent said three bus routes were added;

—Approved hiring Kimberly Ann Dedeaux as an English teacher and basketball coach at Bay Junior High School;

—Approved hiring Patricia Brelaud a part time Title One Program tutor;

—Accepted the resignation of Teacher Catherine Marble;

—Accepted a high bid of $1,114 from Shepard Sales and Service of Metairie for two compressors for air conditioners at Waveland Elementary School. McCulloch recommended not accepting a $930 bid from Palme Refrigeration and Supply Co. of Gulfport because it did not meet specifications; —Accepted a single $930 bid from Dillmann, Inc. of Bay St. Louis for replacement of four lead science table basins at the junior high;

—Accepted a $1,415 mechanical equipment maintenance contract for Waveland Elementary with Pico, Inc. of Bay St. Louis;

—Accepted a Title 1 complaint procedure and advisory committee selection rules submitted by McCulloch;

—Accepted several annual bids for various supplies;

—Heard a report from McCulloch that an overall faculty meeting would be at 2 p.m. Aug. 18 and invited the board and its attorney.

behind our work."

Commissioner Dave McDonald stated, "I think White's explanation is very good. The first people we're contacted said the whole roof had to be replaced."

Airport Manager Andy Ewing of Bay Aviation said there is leakage around skylights of the building and the hanger doors were damaged by previous storms and "work less and less."

Genin stated, "As I see it we would have to advertise."

White reported, "We've never had to bid on work like this before."

Artigues said, "We don't have any choice."

White replied, "Well, what's the good of having insurance?"

McDonald explained, "I've worked with a lot of these insurance claims. The insurance agent negotiates with the owner and pays the owner, then the owner has the responsibility of getting someone to do the work."

Artigues reiterated that the commission had no alternative but to advertise.

Hoffman explained, "With a one-year warranty on the repair work I've got an agreement with the county to pay the full amount, but if the roof needs to be replaced there's depreciation..."

DeBlanc stated, "This is specialized work and has to be advertised for bids."

McDonald said to White, "You mentioned you did some building repairs in Pascagoula after Hurricane Fredrick. Surely you worked on government buildings. How did you get around the bid process there?"

Genin explained, "There was a special law passed after Fredrick to allow Harrison and Jackson Counties to do repairs without bids. It was an emergency situation."

Ewing stated, "If these planes get wet and I have to go to the hospital, then you'll have an emergency."

Gex reported, "The law says any technical or professional assistance over $25,000 requires bids."

Commissioner Victor Frankiewicz said, "I think that law was designed for attorneys."

McDonald explained, "Metal roofs are very technical and only a few people do this type of work."

Commissioner Fred Curet said, "The other contractors would take the old roof and haul it away."

In other business at the regular 7:30 p.m. meeting in the commission's Waveland offices, the commissioners:

—Authorized advertisement for bids to sandblast and repaint the exterior of the Port Blenville Industrial Park water tower, wash the interior of the tank and spot paint the interior where needed. The work specifications also include an alternate bid on painting the entire interior of the tank;

—Authorized a release agreement with Delta Exploration Co., a seismograph company which recently completed testing work at Port Blenville;

—Authorized a $3,720 professional contract with Mid Gulf Construction Co. to provide all labor, tools and equipment for installation of 560 feet of eight-inch water pipe from the existing water pipe at Port Blenville to the other limb of the Borg-Warner Corp. plant site;

—Authorized the purchase of water pipe for the Port Blenville project;

—Authorized payment of the general operating and railroad operating dockets;

—Authorized a $117 replenishment of petty cash;

—Accepted $5,700 from Delta for Port Blenville oil exploration recently completed;

—Heard a report from Genin that per-diem payments to commission members would not be increased;

—Heard a report from Genin that the land purchase agreement from the Seal estate on Firtower Road for the airport's non-directional beacon has not yet been finalized;

—Heard a report from engineer Mike Smith of Advanced Developments, Inc. that funds applications for the Stennis Industrial Park road with sewer crossings and water lines have been filed with the Economic Development Administration. However, Frankiewicz said all new applications had to be filed;

—Received a letter from EDA approving rerouting of the Port Blenville Road around the southern perimeter of the Borg-Warner site.

FIGURINE ACREAGE

A new way of determining crop acreage is examined on "Farmweek" at 7:30 p.m., Monday, August 25, on Mississippi ETV. "Farmweek" reporter James Booth travels to Indiana and interviews Tom Barron, district manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), about the new method they use to determine crop acreage. According to Barron, ASCS has found the new method to be quicker, to cut their costs in half and to have side benefits to farmers. Each Monday at 7:30 p.m., with a rebroadcast the following Tuesday at 7:30 a.m., "Farmweek" features an aspect of farming in Mississippi and also provides current market reports and weather forecasts.

MISS MELISSA ANN LAGARDE

Lagarde, Brannin plan September wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Lagarde of Bay St. Louis announce the engagement of their daughter, Melissa Ann, to Ralph Aldridge Brannin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vanness Brannin of St. Simons Island, Ga., and formerly of Howard, Ga.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bay Senior High School and Mississippi State University. She has been employed as a horticulture instructor at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College in Tifton, Ga.

Miss Lagarde, whose mother is the former Mary Lee Colclough, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jules A. Lagarde and the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Colclough of New Orleans. The prospective groom is a graduate of Butler High School and Middle Georgia College in Cochran, Ga. He served four years in the United States Navy. He is employed in a landscaping business in St. Simons. Mr. Brannin, whose mother is the former Virginia Adams,

Kitchen Magic—High Tech and Hardwood

High Tech, the combination of high style and technology, can be especially effective in kitchens. After all, the most obvious high tech accessory is probably the butcher block table, which got its start as a cutting block for butchers. Another kitchen accoutrement which is high tech is the commercial garbage can. Pictured here in chrome, it adds an element of class to an otherwise casual kitchen.

The kitchen pictured here is one of the most-used areas of a SoHo-loft. The owners use a commercial refrigerator (pictured in the book, High Tech, by Joan Kron and Suzanne Slesin) both because they like to see what they have on hand, and because they entertain large groups of people. The restaurant-style pot hanger island is also a handy fixture and adds to the high tech look. Without the warmth and beauty of these maple floors, however, the high tech look could become very sterile. The butcher block counter island and the hardwood floors combine to make the kitchen both stylish and comfortable. Although the high tech style can be cold and forbidding if overdone, hardwood floors and accessories can give high tech a glow as cozy as a country kitchen.

SPORT BILLY INTERVIEWS
THE SUPERSTARS

MEET: ALL-STAR INFIELDER TOBY HARRAH

Cleveland Indians infielder Toby Harrah has been an American League All-Star three times. He was named shortstop on the Sporting News American League All-Star team in 1975 and last year set a career runs scored mark with 99, the most by an Indian since Dick Howser (now managing the New York Yankees) crossed the plate 101 times in 1964. SPORT BILLY, the official mascot of many international sports federations and events and the worldwide symbol of fun and fair play in all sports, recently interviewed Harrah.

Sport Billy: Earlier this year during spring training you played a pair of games against the Yokohama Taiyo Whales, one of the Japanese teams in the Central League. What were your impressions?

Harrah: Japanese baseball is improving all the time. We still have the edge on them physically. Our stadiums are larger and it's harder for them to hit home runs over here. But they have really learned the basics well and some of them are even quicker than we are. I expect that in a few years we'll see more and more of them making it in the U.S.

Sport Billy: With all of these multi-million dollar packs being signed today do you think the incentive of playing just for playing's sake has diminished? Is there any team spirit left in baseball or is everyone simply playing for themselves?

Harrah: Oh, no. Baseball players are a proud bunch and fiercely competitive. In my nine seasons in the majors I've seen players making over a million bucks a year but just as much as a rookie making only $20,000 annually. Of course there are some players who are overly preoccupied with their state, sometimes at the expense of their teammates, but by and large, there still exists a sense of team camaraderie. We're trying to play as a unit, not as individuals. Individuals don't win pennants — teams do. And that's the way it should be.

Sport Billy: What have been some of your biggest thrills as a major leaguer?

Harrah: One of the biggest thrills was collecting my first big league hit, off Oakland's Vida Blue in 1971 when I played for the Washington Senators. Other highlights were my 1,000th hit off Minnesota's Twins reliever, Mike Marshall in 1978 that also won us the ballgame, and making the All-Star team three times.

Sport Billy: What advice can you give to youngsters who hope to play in the big leagues someday?

Harrah: They should first be aware of how difficult it is to make it. But if they're serious, they should keep an open ear to what their coaches have to say. It's important when you're young to first get along with your teammates. And one thing that constantly irks me is the low caliber of instruction in Little League. Coaches put too much emphasis on winning and run a lot of young players. They learn not to enjoy the game but to think first and foremost about winning. The coaches should teach the children the fundamentals of the game. Winning championships will come later.

Sport Billy: What do you plan to do after your playing days are over?

Harrah: First of all I would like to finish school. I began my career at a very early age — I was 18 when I began playing for Huron in the minor leagues. I want to get my college degree and then stay in baseball in some capacity perhaps coaching at the high school or college level. The game has been very good to me and has given me a good living and I want to do something for baseball when I'm finished playing.

Test Your Skill Saying Yes Or No

Some of today's favorite expressions are older than you think! From the simple "yes" and "no" of the first colonists to the far-out jargon of today's teenagers, Americans through the years have said "yes" or "no" in a variety of ways.

In the new learning program, "Language Skills and Use," researchers for Scott, Foresman and Company list specific dates when certain expressions were first used. The textbooks in this program are designed for use in the elementary grades and emphasize language expression and structure.

To see if you can identify these various periods in history by the idioms of the time, try matching the following ways to say "yes" or "no" with the corresponding dates when they first appeared.

ASCS Report

Disaster program eligibility for cotton, rice, feed grains, or wheat is dependent on evidence of crop damage. Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) stated. Farmers who believe they may be eligible or may later become eligible for disaster payments for cotton, rice, wheat, corn, and grain sorghum crops should notify the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office of intentions to destroy the acreage before actual destruction takes place.
If a farmer believes that the natural disaster has caused a substantial loss to his/her program crops and chooses not to carry a portion of these crops through harvest, he/she should notify the county ASCS office immediately, Gennin said.

Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office, Gennin said. FORESTRY PROGRAM
Landowners in Pearl River and Hancock Counties have improved or reforested hundreds of acres of woodlands through the Forestry Incentives Program administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.
Gennin said the program cost shares with eligible landowners the planting of new trees or improving established woodlands.
"Tree planting is not only a good investment, it also helps increase the nation's supply of timber," Gennin said.

Thinning overstocked woodlands increases the growth rate of desirable trees resulting in a higher quality stand of timber. Technical help, provided through State Foresters, assures that forests are managed professionally and efficiently.
Gennin said many private non-industrial landowners do not have the funds to make necessary long-term investments to develop and improve their forest areas.
"Landowners who own at least 10 acres of eligible forest land may receive cost-share assistance under this program to raise marketable timber," he said.
The program offers agreements in designated counties where a landowner can plan tree planting and timber stand improvement measures for up to 10 years. There is a payment limitation of $10,000 to any one person during any year of the agreement, according to Gennin.

Landowners who wish to apply or obtain additional information on the Forestry Incentives Program should contact the local ASCS office.

Levelized Billing

A Service To Help Residential Customers Budget Large Summer Electric Bills

Mississippi Power Company is very concerned about the large summer electric bills which customers are receiving. Several factors, particularly the hot, humid weather in recent weeks, are causing bills to be larger now than in previous months.

Mississippi Power Company recognizes that large electric bills in summer months often can create an unexpected financial burden for customers, especially those on fixed incomes or on tight personal budgets.

Levelized Billing Plan

Mississippi Power Company's Levelized Billing Plan for residential customers can help overcome the strain of paying large seasonal electric bills. Levelized Billing is a plan that helps smooth out monthly electric bills; dramatic seasonal fluctuations are reduced. The total annual cost of electric service is distributed over a 12-month period.

You May Qualify

You may qualify for Levelized Billing if you have a record of prompt payment of electric bills and if Mississippi Power Company has provided service to you at your present address for at least 12 months. Customers occupying new homes for less than one year also may qualify.

Personnel at the nearest Mississippi Power Company office will be glad to explain the advantages of Levelized Billing and help you apply for this service. Come by today!

Psychological, financial planning necessary for successful retirement

EDITOR'S NOTE: In these times of rising inflation, many Mississippi families are finding it increasingly difficult to stretch family income. This final story in a series warns that planning for retirement is an important part of family management during youth to avoid the pitfalls of old age.

By JANE HONEYCUTT
Extension Service
The retirement syndrome can strike anyone, regardless of occupation or economic condition.

But it hits hardest those people who have made no plans for retirement. At the least, it can make people unhappy and experts say it can actually make people sick, robbing years from their life.

The remedy: Plan for retirement while young. Bonita Bridges, area consumer management specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, says retirement plans should include psychological as well as financial needs. "Develop interests and friendships that are satisfying and - most of all - an adequate income," she says. The average 65-year-old man who retires can expect to live another 14 years; a woman that age can look forward to another 18 years.

To prepare for retirement, people should list present expenditures. Then estimate which current expenses will be eliminated, reduced or increased, Mrs. Bridges says. "Expenses for clothing and housing probably will decrease. People who don't work outside their home need fewer clothes. The home mortgage may be paid off, but property taxes may increase," she explains.

"Medical expenses tend to increase with age. People lose employers' contributions to health and life insurance, so payments increase, but Medicare may offset part of these medical expenses."

Retirees have more leisure time and must plan for it more. Mrs. Bridges tells about a widow who discovered she was spending 12 percent of her income on crafts, hobbies and attending meetings. Before retirement, she spent almost nothing for leisure activities.

"How and where people live influence their living costs," Mrs. Bridges points out. "Transportation may be an important factor if you don't live near shopping areas, a church or a bus line."

Gifts and contributions usually remain about the same, but they may take up a larger portion if income is lower. The same is true for other expenses. The bureau of Labor Statistics indicates retired families use a greater share of their incomes for food, housing and medical expenses than do non-retired families.

Mrs. Bridges advises clients to evaluate sources of retirement income. She suggests they consider combining annuities, pensions, savings, investments and other assets with Social Security they expect to receive. Part-time jobs can add to income and will help fill leisure hours. Still other people may be secure enough financially to pursue interests they have shelved in their working years.

"Planning is important if people are to avoid the retirement syndrome: empty hours, no job, no hobby, too little income," Mrs. Bridges says. "Plan while you're young."

Ag Affairs by Ed Blake

Farmlands of Mississippi and the nation over the years have generated such favorable if not nostalgic sensations to the public as pastoral scenes worthy of the painter's palette, or smells of new-mown hay, or the gentle rustling of leaves in autumn, or a babbling brook meandering through a meadow following a rain shower.

The sights, sounds, and fragrances of the hinterlands are an enchantment for most people - most of the time.

But because there is another side to the coin the Mississippi legislature this year passed legislation to assure farms a certain immunity from the whims of Mother Nature - as, when hay sours, or a herd of cattle spooked by some unseen threat begins a din of bawling, or when some particular farming operation or phase of it isn't as pretty as it may be at other times.

More and more counties and townships across America have seen fit in recent years to pass local ordinances or state legislation recognizing the rights of farming in the overall scheme of things. From time to time the new proximity of urban people to raw farming operations brings some conflict. Occasionally when city-bred people move to the country they get more than the fresh air, peace, and quiet they bargained for. They may get the smell of pigs or other livestock, early morning sounds of irrigation pumps, dust and noise from farm tractors working fields along rural roads, or the smell of various chemicals in the air from on-going aerial applications of pesticides or herbicides.

And occasionally a farmer has gotten socked with a "nuisance suit."

The Mississippi legislature has acted in keeping with a philosophy that whatever so-called nuisance occasionally may be caused to others by such widespread farming uses is more than offset by the economic benefits of farming to the neighborhood and community and to society in general by the preservation of open space, the beauty of the countryside, cleaner air, and by the preservation of farming operations as the source of food and fiber for this as well as future generations.

Mississippi's law to protect farming operations from alleged nuisance actions, public or private, gives an environmental priority to agricultural operations that have existed for one year or more as "an absolute defense" if the conditions or circumstances causing the complaint have existed substantially unchanged since the established date of operation.

The law interprets farming or agricultural operations as including without limitation any facility for the production and processing of crops, livestock, farm-raised fish and fish products, livestock products, and poultry or poultry products for commercial or industrial purposes.

The Farm Bureau organization, in support of such legislation, has taken the stance that "farming is a biological process and, as such, there is noise, odors, dust and the need for use of essential chemicals and fertilizers, and that farming is often also a seven-day-a-week, and often night-time operation."

This means agriculture cannot be put in a modern strait jacket of conformity. And certain natural processes must remain natural.

REAL-LIFE DRAMA - Terry Wiles, who plays himself in the Emmy Award-winning "Great Performances" presentation, "On Giant's Shoulders," to be rebroadcast at 7 p.m., Thursday, August 21, on the Mississippi ETV Network. Judi Dench plays his adoptive mother in the dramatization of Terry's life as a severely deformed talladome victim.
